How fully?

To answer this question-

1. Write a short introduction, 'Source A gives quite a full description/explanation of ...but fails to mention everything.'
2. Pick out the points that the source does tell you about the issue and write them in your own words (Try to find 3 points)
3. Then mention other points (3) from your own knowledge that are not mentioned in the source.

To What Extent Question

You must have the following:

- A short introduction outlining what factors you are going to talk about
- 5 pieces of detailed knowledge explaining WHY that factor was important
- More than one factor
- Conclusion - a statement telling me what is the most important
- Evidence - a short explanation telling me why that is the most important

9 marks!

Note - if you do not mention more than one factor, you will only get 3!

To what extent was hunger the main reason for the French Revolution?

Factor in question (1-2 points)

Hunger was a reason for the French Revolution because much of the 3rd Estate couldn't get enough food which made them desperate to change how France was ruled. Bad harvests was another reason hunger led to the French Revolution as the price of bread rose enormously making it impossible to afford and people became extremely angry with King Louis XVI.

Feedback -

Remember to answer the question, many of you were ALMOST there.

Hunger was one reason why the French Revolution started was because the poor were not getting enough to eat while the first and second estates were eating well.

Hunger was one reason why the French Revolution started was because the poor were not getting enough to eat while the first and second estates were eating well which caused the third estate to revolt against the King.
